Here's your kick-off to the holidays

WHATSIT?

This charming little Asian fellow is the brainchild of one of Magic's most prolific inventors, JIM SWOGER. I remember as a boy visiting Ireland's Magic Co. at 109 North Dearborn in Chicago and seeing him on display.

Typical of those times, the effect involved a bunch of props. It's probably a generational thing, but of lot of us "old guys" really loved apparatus magic.

The action here revolved around the character's jumbo gold coin vanishing and reappearing from behind one of the screens.

The finale' is the spectators finally catching the performer in the act of trying to hide the coin behind said screen, BUT when the "coin" is revealed, it is really the wily Asian Magician; the screen in front of the ornate stand that originally held the jumbo coin is then removed and it is seen the precious coin has miraculously returned to safety. TA-DA!

If you are the first member to notify our Editor Leigh Hotz before the next meeting of the name of this vintage apparatus, YOU WILL WIN A FREE $10.00 GIFT CERTIFICATE to the WIZARD MAGIC SHOP.
